

Abstract of the Disclosure

A plurality of sensors observe an object, and the raw sensor data is processed to produce evidence signals representative of characteristics which may be used to classify the object as to type. The evidence from the 5 plurality of sensors is fused to generate fused or combined evidence. Thus, the fused evidence is equivalent to signals produced by a virtual sensor. The fused evidence is applied to a taxonomic classifier to determine the object type.